7 EAT IT!

Veniam, quis nostrud exerci tation ullamcorper suscipit lobortis nisl ut aliquip ex ea commodo consequat. Duis autem vel eum iriure dolor in hendrerit in vulputate velit esse molestie consequat, vel illum dolore eu feugiat nulla facilisis at vero eros et accumsan et iusto o sed diam nonummy nibh euismod tincidunt ut laoreet dolore magna aliquam erat volutpat.utate velit esse molestie consequat, vel illum dolore eu feugiat nulla facilisis at vero eu feugiat nulla facilisis at vero eros et accumsan et iusto o sed diam nonummy.

Bowl + Soup1 + Soup2 + Bug + There + Disgust + Bowl-There + Back-To-You

✳ STEP ONE: BOWL

First you need to place the bowl of soup in time and space. Using a swooping motion as if you're smoothing the sides of a clay pot on a potter's wheel, define the sides and size of the soup bowl.

✳ STEP TWO: SOUP1/SOUP2

Make your fingers into the "H" position from the fingerspelling section and bend the "H" a bit so it looks like a spoon and dip that spoon into the soup. Pretend to eat the soup, taking the spoon from the soup bowl to your lips. Repeat two or three times.

✳ STEP THREE: BUG

Bring your "H" soup-spoon hand up under your right eye and separate the fingers a bit and bend them a few times like you're pulling the trigger on a gun. Your flexing fingers are suggesting the movement of the insect.

✳ STEP FOUR: THERE

Point to the precise location of where that bug is in your soup. Location is important. You told us about the bug; now you are showing us exactly where to find it in your soup.

✳ STEP FIVE: DISGUST

Move your hand, which is held in a claw shape, in circles in front of your stomach. Now you get to use your Magic Tongue! (See the sidebar below.) Stick that tongue out a bit—but not too far—and make the universal sign for being nauseous.

✳ STEP SIX: BOWL-THERE + BACK-TO-YOU

Place your hands deliberately on the sides of your "bowl," pick it up, and throw it back in your waiter's face. Point made.